J. D. Buckalew, third vice president of the machinists' union, to-night tried to submit to the Santa Fe management a new set of rules adopted by the executive committee of the union in Washington, He was informed that the Santa Fe would have no dealing with the union whatever Mr. Mudge absolutely refused to consider any proposition Mr. Buckalew had to of-

In discussing his action, General Manager Mudge said: "We have a fine se of men working for us and we want to give them every opportunity to get back in the service. This is why we have waited all this time. The men were imposed upon by the representatives of the union officers, and we do not wish to see them lose their positions for any such reason. Every place remaining vacant Monday morning will be filled. We have a larger number of machinists engaged than there are strikers out. We shall have no trouble Third Vice President Buckalew said: "We will win this strike. We are prepared for it, and the road cannot secure competent men in sufficient numbers to keep their engines going. I do not look for any sympathetic strike on the part of the other employes of the road, with the possible exception of the boiler makers in Topeka. The indications are to-night that they will

A CLASSIC by HENNER

"THE LISTENER"

"THE LISTENER" is an excellent example of Jean Jacques Henner's style. His portrayal of the humble maid, eagerly listening, is considered one of his best efforts. He has the rare faculty of poetizing everything he paints, and particularly the human face and figure.

It is difficult to conceive of beauty more innocent and pure than is expressed in the features of this mischievous young girl. Henner was born in 1829, at Bemwiller, a small village in Alsace near Belfort. He has been a favorite of Americans as early as 1866. His "La Source" brought $10,000.00 at public auction. A really beautiful picture, and you'll be disappointed should you miss
